CHAMBER ON RECORD FOR SOLDIER PAY

Richardson D. White Says Men Deserve Some Compensation

FOUR PROPOSITIONS

Board Endorses All Four
to U. S. Chamber of Commerce

Referendum No. 38 of the United States chamber of commerce was read at the directors' meeting and luncheon of the Glendale chamber of commerce Tuesday. It deals with proposed legislation for the veterans of the world war and presented four propositions for the chamber to act upon.

The four propositions are:
1st: Do you favor a national system of reclamation and an appropriation to enable former service men to secure farms?

2nd: Do you favor legislation and an appropriation to enable former service men to buy homes?

3rd: Do you favor legislation and an appropriation to enable the former service men to take vocational training?

4th: Do you favor legislation and an appropriation giving the former service men a cash bonus to be paid either at once or to be made in time payments by the use of certificates?

In the discussion Richardson D. White, a former service man said that the men who served this country during the war do not like to have the proposed measures called a bonus. He stated that the service men do not term it as a gift, which is implied when the term bonus is used, but consider it rather as adjusted compensation for the time they spent in the army while those who did not serve were at home earning higher pay than a majority of them had ever earned before. He said that if the proposition is to be selective and all four opportunities placed before the veterans to take their choice of the type of adjusted compensation they desire, that he would make a motion to endorse the whole program.

Secretary J. M. Rhoades is in favor of the bonus for the men who went into France and Belgium and fought.

The board of directors decided that it would endorse all four of the propositions with the understanding that the program, in its entirety would be presented to the former service men, each individual would choose which form of adjusted compensation he desired.

Following is a list of new members proposed at the meeting of the directors Tuesday:
Builders' Hardware and Supply Co., Connor and Marshall, M. A. Denman, Roy E. Drew, East Broadway Market, Miss Alice H. Frank, Marlowe A. Harrison, Holliday & Way, F. B. Hupp, Harry H. James, South Glendale Bakery, Harry E. Rogers, Sanitary Home Bakery and Fred Watrin.

WATCH YOUR DOG SAYS HEALTH MAN

Number Cases of Rabies
Among Dogs Here
Says Eckles

According to Dr. J. E. Eckles, city health officer the old plague of rabies among dogs of Glendale has made its appearance. The brain of one dog has been examined and a positive test returned and another is under examination with a possibility of a positive test. The dog in which the disease was found was owned by A. C. Shader, 1224 Dorothy drive. All of the dogs in the vicinity bounded by Viola, Stocker, Pacific and Columbia streets have been placed in quarantine by Dr. Eckles and their owners ordered to keep them chained for the next 30 days.

All dog owners are requested to maintain a close watch on their pets for the next month and at the slightest indication of the dog suffering from rabies to report the case to the health department.

REFORMER SEES POLITICS IN HAYS JOB

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—"The movie trust" has purchased Will H. Hays to lead the screen in a drive to dominate the politics of the United States and smash anti-movie legislation, Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, premier of reformers, charged here today.

"Is there any American too dull to resent and prevent this conspiracy of mostly a foreign trade to run this government in the interest of one sect?" Crafts demanded.

Branding Criminals Stirs Henry James to Make a Protest

Branding of alien criminals. Henry James in his comments on the news of the day, says that this suggestion of the district attorney of Kings county is repugnant to every humane instinct. While Mr. James believes that criminals should be punished, he says that to brand a man a criminal would be that emblem of crime that man a criminal. He would have no chance and in the event of his innocence would be the victim of a cruel wrong inflicted by the state. James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening gives advice on writing. It may not be the advice you sought, but it is good, wholesome advice, nevertheless.

Dr. Frank Crane steps out of his usual style of writing to speak about curious wills. It is rather interesting to read the collection of incidents relating to wills, which Dr. Crane presents. He speaks of one will a father had left to his son's daughter. A soldier wrote his will and a bullet passed through it. Another was found in the leg of a four-poster bed.

Editorials on unemployment, paying for brains and other topics of interest, will be found on the editorial page, as well as poetry, features and other worth-while features.

COMMITTEES AT BOARD SESSION

Membership Group Met
With Directors on Tuesday

Keeping up with the policy of the chamber of commerce directors to have one of the standing committees of that organization meet with it each week at the luncheon and meeting until all committees have appeared, the membership committee of which Mrs. M. L. Tight is chairman was invited to attend on Tuesday.

Mrs. Tight was introduced to the directors and in turn introduced Mrs. P. A. Pollock and E. E. Brown as co-workers on the committee. The other members of the committee were unable to attend. Mrs. Tight told the directors that she intended calling a meeting of her committee as soon as possible and that plans were being made during the year would be made at that meeting.

Mr. Ford of the Los Angeles Times addressed the directors and explained why Glendale had been omitted from the recent pictures of the various towns of the San Fernando valley that appeared in that publication. Mr. Ford stated that Glendale had not been overlooked but that the publication of these pictures had been temporarily suspended during the holiday season and would be taken up within the next few weeks. He said that a photographer from the Times would be in Glendale in a very few days and would secure pictures for the page.

He stated that the Los Angeles Times has nothing but friendly feeling for Glendale and that he, personally, has only the warmest feeling for this city as he has watched this city grow from a small village to one of the liveliest towns in Southern California.

Mr. Miller, representing the Reliance Truck company appeared before the directors and asked that body to give their approval of a plan by that company to build a factory in Glendale and to sell stock in the company being organized to operate the factory. This request was referred to the industrial committee for action.

Big News to Come From Realtors Near Future
Date

The Glendale realty board governing committee held a most enthusiastic and important meeting last night in the rooms of the chamber of commerce. Several matters of very great importance to the real estate profession and to the welfare of the city of Glendale came up for discussion.

One matter of more benefit to the city than any that has developed in the past two years was initiated, and when it is fully known, will be supported most heartily by every citizen and organization of Glendale. Owing to the fact that it is yet in its infancy, the publication of this plan is being withheld for a short time.

The board voted to make application to the president of the national association of real estate boards so that each member of the local board will become thereby a full-fledged realtor, and only thereby will be authorized to use that term in the conduct of his business. It is the plan of the president of the California real estate association to present to the president of the national association, at the state convention to be held at Oakland on the 19th to 21st of this month, an application to the national association from every one of the local boards of the state.

Communications were read from the Long Beach realty board, and Toledo, Ohio, realty board, regarding the organization and methods of conducting the business in those cities. A committee was appointed to investigate thoroughly their plans and to make a report to the Glendale board as to whether or not it would be practical to adopt such methods here. It would cause a drastic change in conducting the business here in Glendale, but it is believed by many that it would make for more uniformity and stability, and for absolute protection for the broker, the seller and buyer. A little later a full report on this matter will be made.

Other committees, the personnel of which will be announced later, were made as follows: Membership, schedule of commissions, committee of insignia for window display, and a publicity committee. It was further recommended that each member of the board state in every advertisement that he is a member of the Glendale realty board, as it will inspire more confidence in the people coming to Glendale to do business with dealers who are organized to do business on a uniform and cooperative basis.

The next regular meeting of the board is to be in the nature of a luncheon, to be held at the chamber of commerce on Tuesday, January 24, at noon. A short and snappy meeting is going to be held, the doors being opened promptly at 12, and the meeting adjourned promptly at 1. Besides the regular business of the board, a prominent speaker will be invited to give a talk on some matter of interest, and probably of instruction to real estate brokers.

MEN'S GYM CLASS TO BE ORGANIZED

Session Thursday Night
in High School Auditorium

Mr. Glendale Business Man, you now have the privilege of securing the advantages of the finest gymnasium and equipment that has ever been available in Glendale. You have the opportunity of securing the services of professional physical training experts, who know the ins and outs of putting a fellow into the finest possible condition and keeping him there.

You have offered to you the chance to engage in friendly athletic contests with your neighbors or with out-of-town teams. It is acknowledged that participation in contests of this kind keep a man mentally and physically fit to carry on his business with the required energy and "pep."

Several years ago local business men were so anxious for athletic instruction and games that they rented the old packing house on Glendale avenue with no athletic equipment, no showers or the like. Today you have an offer of an excellent gymnasium, the best of athletic equipment, showers with hot and cold water—in fact, everything that can be desired. And all this is yours for the asking. A letter along this line is being sent out to a number of business and professional men today.

There will be a meeting Thursday night in the high school auditorium to which all men interested are invited. The session begins at 7:30 o'clock.

START WORK ON HOTEL IN A FEW DAYS

Fred D. Davis Co. Awarded
Contract for Work

THEIR AGENT IS HERE

Six Story Unit to First
Be Constructed Is Report

Actual work on the construction of the first unit of the Glendale hotel, at the corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway, will start within ten days, according to R. Marshall Ferguson, local representative for the Fred D. Davis company, 431 Merchants National Bank building, Los Angeles, who last were last night awarded the contract for the erection of this elaborate structure. The beginning of this work will take place as soon as construction material can be placed on the ground.

The unit will consist of a six-story portion erected just behind the store room that will be built on the corner. From this six-story section wings two stories in height will be built along Glendale avenue and Broadway. The main floor of this unit, exclusive of the central hotel section will be taken up by store rooms. There will be nine stores on Broadway, one on the corner and seven on Glendale avenue.

The central section, consisting of six stories and the second story of the two wings will be occupied entirely by the hotel, which will be as up-to-date as any hotel in Southern California. Between the one-story business structure on the corner and the central hotel section will be a driveway for the accommodation of the patrons of the hotel. It is stated that architecturally this building when finished will be of such a character as to be a pride to any city, and will do much toward boosting the business section of Glendale as a whole and of the eastern section in particular.

The idea of the company in erecting this structure in units is to make the structure available for hotel purposes at the earliest possible moment. The need of a hotel of this character is realized and it is believed that it cannot be made available for use any too soon. As soon as the material arrives on the ground the work will be started with a rush and the entire unit will be hurried to completion.

DISCUSSED FIGHT AGAINST FARE INCREASES

Action Be Taken Before
Board at Meeting January 24th

Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilman Davis and Kimlin met with City Manager Reeves and City Attorney Woodard this morning to discuss the coming fight to be waged before the railroad commission in regard to the recent increase in the transportation charge from Los Angeles to this city by the Pacific Electric railroad. This hearing will be before the railroad commission on Tuesday, January 24 and a hot fight is expected.

According to a tentative policy as was discussed at the conference the fight made by City Attorney Woodard may center around a clause in the report of the railroad commission at the time that body granted permission for the Pacific Electric to increase its rates. This report stated that the members of the railroad commission believed that the Pacific Electric was mismanaged and that the management of the road was inefficient and incompetent. It is the belief, current around the city hall today that City Attorney Woodard will center his fight on the fact that the railroad commission granted the Pacific Electric permission to increase its fare knowing that the company was managed by inefficient and incompetent parties. It is the contention of several officials of the city and civic organizations that the action of the railroad commission in granting the increase was placing a premium on incompetency.

Already a plan for abolishing the state railroad commission is under way in Southern California and Glendale has been asked to cooperate in this move by instructing the city attorney to prepare and file an initiative petition asking the abolishment of the commission and placing the railroads under a board of control composed of a man from each county of the state.

Glendale politicians are of the belief that the actions of the state railroad commission in the matter of allowing increases of rates after admitting that the company was mismanaged may have considerable bearing on the coming state elections when Governor Stephens may make the race for second term.

HEARD ARCHITECTS

Board Gives Attention to Several Minor Matters
Tuesday

A special session of the trustees of Glendale union high school was held at the school Tuesday night for the purpose of interviewing architects. President H. V. Brown called the session to order, other members present being H. W. Yarrick, Daniel Campbell and Thomas D. Watson.

A report on the trip to inspect high schools which was taken Sunday by board members was submitted by Trustee Yarrick, accepted and ordered filed.

The president and members of the house committee consisting of H. W. Yarrick and Thomas D. Watson were instructed to commence proceedings to secure a clear title to the property on which the board holds options for a high school site.

The board agreed that all architects seeking commissions for architectural work should be notified to make appointments for appearing before the board between now and January 28.

Arthur G. Lindley was given a hearing, submitting blue prints, photos, etc., and letters of recommendation. He was followed by C. C. Rittenhouse, also of Glendale and Los Angeles, who discussed with the board different types of construction and submitted letters relative to his qualifications.

A communication from the superintendent of public instruction relative to the high school's responsibility for the safety of pupils was by vote referred to the county counsel for a written legal opinion. The board also voted to employ Miss Williams as a teacher of English.

Architect Norman Marsh was then interviewed by the board and submitted for its inspection plans and specifications of schools he has built.

The next meeting of the board at which the hearings granted to architects will be continued will be held next Tuesday, but an adjournment was taken until Saturday at 4 p. m. when other matters will be considered.

RAILWAY BOARD IS IN BAD WITH LONG BEACH PEOPLE

Chamber Asks Local Board to Vote to Put
Men Out of Office

A petition from the citizens, city council and the chamber of commerce of Long Beach was read Tuesday at the weekly meeting of the board of directors of the Glendale chamber. It asked that the Glendale organization and the city council cooperate in an attempt to abolish the state railroad commission.

In view of the recent increase of rates over the Pacific Electric railway, the petition recites, and the apparent unwillingness of the commission to take any action to relieve the situation, the city atorney of Glendale is asked to draw and present an initiative petition asking for the abolishment of the commission. The communication also suggested that the railroads of the state be under a board of control of one man from each county.

No action was taken. It was the general opinion that action should be held in abeyance until the railroad commission holds its next meeting on January 24th. This would give the commission an opportunity to indicate its attitude toward the increased transportation rates and take any action that they may deem proper on the numerous petitions that have been filed with them since the increase became effective.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

WHAT WAS MALTY UP TO NOW?

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1931, by Associated Newspapers)

Did the red dog want to come and lie by Maltie's side? It wanted to more than it wanted anything in the world—except a square meal. It was cold, cold, to the very marrow of its bones, so cold that just the few minutes it had been sitting still, talking to Maltie, had stiffened it so it could hardly walk without shivering. It followed Maltie to the door of the snug cabin where he lived with his very own Man and stood trembling while Maltie mewed, "Hey, there! Let me in."

The door opened. "Come on," said the kindest voice ever the beast had heard, excepting only Louise Thompson's. "Eh, Maltie, who have you brought now? Dear me, we'll have to build us an addition to this shack to accommodate your friends. Where did you get this one?"

"Me-waur-r," replied Maltie so sociably, putting a foot on his own little tin to suggest that the stranger needed something more filling than talk.

"Give us time. Give us time," chuckled the man, reaching for a sack for the red dog to lie down on. Then he got out a fine big kettle of stew. In about three whisks of a tail he was dishing out the tastiest meal ever a hungry wanderer tucked inside of him.

How that dog did eat! It licked the dish three times and began on a fourth helping. But it never finished that one. Right between licks its legs seemed to crumple under it, its eyelids dropped, and it fell asleep with its nose in the tin.

"Plumb tired out," commented Maltie's man. "What's that? You want to go out again? Oh, all right, all right." He opened the door. Maltie just slipped through.

He Was Hustling Right Along to Dr. Muskrat's Pond

when the wind slammed it shut with a bang. It didn't quite wake the sleeper up, but it started him dreaming. Not a pleasant kind of a dream, either. Maltie's man watched the poor dog cringe and whine as if some one were beating it. Then he reached out a gentle hand and soothed it, just as you might soothe a baby that is crying in the night. "There now, there now," he whispered. "It looks to me like somebody's been treating you mighty mean. I'd just like to know where you come from, but I'm not likely to. You haven't any collar on. Yes, and I'd just like to know

DEBATE TESTS IN PROGRESS HERE

High Debaters Prepare for Long Beach Contest

January 27 has been set as the date for the next league debate in which Glendale High will compete. It will be held at Long Beach and try-outs to ascertain who will represent the local school are now in progress.

The selection of the pair who will uphold the honor of the school will be made from a quartet composed of Isabel Tonsey and Douglas Forsythe of the class of '23, Dale Wood and Harold Majors of the class of '22. They will represent the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved that extra territoriality in China should be abolished."

RELIEF FOR VETERANS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Everything possible is being done by the federal government for the relief of disabled veterans, the White House declared emphatically today, referring to numerous criticisms and memorials from ex-soldiers demanding more attention.

C. Wood, state superintendent of schools, has announced. The new ruling by the board requires that applicants for teachers' certificates must have completed six units of work in some California teachers' institution, including a course in the California school system and law. Action was taken by the board only after thousands of applications for certificates had been received from teachers outside of California.

Fashions for Americans

The decidedly smart little blouse shown in the sketch may be made of silk in contrasting colors, or it may very easily be developed with a soft crepe or satin in one color, and ribbon in two widths in a contrasting color. Wide ribbon or strips of material are used on the waist part, with the narrower ones completing the sleeves, and round collar or yoke and cuffs of the fabric forming the foundation of the blouse finish it.

For the mid-winter and first

spring showing, designers are leaning to blouses that are of waist length or just a trifle longer, but generally of the over-the-skirt type. Tailored or semi-tailored effects are in high favor. One smart little crepe de Chine blouse seen in an early spring group was distinguished by a wide panel sort of vest centering the front and concealing the side fastening, each edge of this vest being finished with a narrow shell pleating. The round turn-down collar and the edges of the plain cuffs were similarly finished. This shell pleating, really a narrow pleated ruffle arranged in scallops, is a popular trimming for tailored silk blouses. A very smart cotton blouse, made of white batiste, had a panel or plastron vest made of red and white striped organdy. A high, Queen Elizabeth sort of collar finished the neck of this blouse, and the turn-back cuffs as well as the collar were of the striped fabric, shell pleating in white finishing the various edges of vest, collar and cuffs.

The vogue for sports suits for early spring naturally means a big demand for sports blouses. Both cotton and silk fabrics are popular, sharing honors about evenly. When it is possible to have a blouse hand-made it gains distinction by its workmanship. Making fine cotton blouses by hand is especially to be recommended.

IT'S AN ORPHAN.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Denial was made at the White House that President Harding had anything to do with the Willis amendment in the Newberry resolution which, while seceding the Michigan senator, censured enormous expenditures of money in congressional campaigns.

WOMAN PHYSICIAN GIVES GIRLS A BIT OF ADVICE

Says Women of Today Are Not as Sturdy as of Old

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Flimsy garb of girls spells peril to the race, Dr. Clara P. Seippel, eminent women's specialist, declares. The sturdy type of American womanhood is becoming extinct and a frail, scrawny species is in process of evolution, the physician declared. Rolled hose and short skirts are the present expressions of extreme dress which started some years ago and resulted in the immaturity of the sex of the present generation, Dr. Seippel said.

"There is no doubt," said Dr. Seippel, who treats thousands of girls and young women each year, "but what the girl of today is not as well developed as the one of 20 years ago. Now we have the girl of straight lines, not the well proportioned girl of yesteryear. The girl of today, dressed in thin silk hose, short skirts and satin pumps has no protection against the cold. She may as well wear nothing from the knees down."

"This causes the body to become frail, as the bodily heat, so necessary to proper development, is dissipated. A decade ago girls were muffled from ears to feet as men are today."

"The modern girl of today has an insatiable desire, for candy. This is because the heat of the body is spent rapidly, due to scant dress. It is nature's way of trying to furnish more fuel for the tissues."

Dr. Seippel stated many of the ills of womanhood are caused by constant exposure over a period of years. This condition is aggravated, she said, by the present day tendency of young girls to stay out late at night, thereby missing the rest so necessary to proper development.

"Many young women have been kept from motherhood because they did not dress adequately during their girlhood," Dr. Seippel declared.

NEW HOMES KEEP DEALERS BUSY

"Business is picking up right along since the holidays," said Glen B. Porter, the popular West Broadway furniture dealer. "I have had the biggest sales in linoleum I ever had, during the last few weeks, which indicates that there is no let-up in building. The demand for furniture and stoves has also been very heavy," concluded Mr. Porter, who has one of the largest stores on the west side, and who handles everything in the household furnishing line, from a typewriter to a mammoth range or elaborate bedroom suite. Mr. Porter has great faith in Glendale, and believes there will be building activities for some time to come.

UNEMPLOYMENT

There is much talk throughout the country concerning unemployment. In this section the matter has not become acute. In other parts of the United States, lack of work has caused much distress.

Idleness never is to be encouraged. To the person willing to work, and needing the money that might be earned by work, enforced idleness is a dreadful experience. It soon leads to privation. There is grave danger that it may lead to crime. The bread of charity, however kindly bestowed, is bitter bread.

It is to the advantage of everybody that every hand should be kept busy at the appointed task. The product of labor is wealth in which all share. The man who is doing something and earning something is a useful citizen.

To provide work ought to be a public function.
In many instances persons anxious for employment
have to pay high for the privilege of getting it.
Such persons are likely to be otherwise imposed upon.
Unhappily there is in this state no law protecting them against unscrupulous agents.

Recently a woman sought a position. In order to get it she had to pay a fee of $7.50, and in addition give a promissory note for $30. The second sum was supposed to be a portion of her first month's wages. She was obliged to give up the position at the end of three days, for no fault of her own.
Thereupon she sought release from the claim of the agent. It was refused. She was sued, a judgment for $50 including costs, was entered against her, and
on this the agent collected by garnishment on her pay
to a position she did get and retain.

Of course the whole proceeding, legal or not,
would have been an outrage. At the next session of the legislature it would appear reasonable to suppose that this, and similar instances, will be in the minds of the statesmen there foregathered.

PAYING FOR BRAINS

Complaints that the executive heads of great industrial enterprises are over-paid are frequent. The man who creates or directs a colossal industry, who guides the destinies of a railroad, earns all he gets.
Often he earns more than he receives. Some men are so essential that it would be impossible to name
a price for their services.

If the worker in the ranks is inclined to believe that his superior is drawing too great a salary, he might change his mind upon thinking it over. If the genius of the superior in question is the equation that makes possible the employment of many, then each of the many is a direct beneficiary.

It may be true that in certain public stations incumbents are paid so much too much that the complete stoppage of their salaries, followed by abolition of the jobs, would be an excellent thing. This is politics. It is quite apart from the field of industrial enterprise. So far as the disgruntled critic peeved over the fact that his boss gets greater pay than the critic, is concerned, it has nothing to do with the case.

Perhaps a little reflection upon the circumstance
that were there not big-brained men to head large enterprises, there could be no large enterprises, would be educational, and serve to promote content.

The political shake-up in France is reported to have created alarm in Berlin. "Germans regard Poincare
as the arch-instigator of the war" cables the correspondent.

Why this attempt to rob the ex-kaiser of the reputation that endears him to the monarchial party?
The correspondent is named Karl H. von Wiegand.
Could it be that the name indicates a prejudice of any sort?

Of course when any correspondent says that Poin-
care is regarded as the arch conspirator of the war,
he is drawing on his imagination. The Germans were guilty of gross errors of judgment, but for one of their number to intimate that the war taught them
nothing, and that they remain at the old level of stupidity, is to say the least, very unkind.

Just as Berlin is shaken by alarm, the allies grant
a moratorium to Germany. Perhaps this will serve to show that there really is nothing at which to be alarmed. Nobody appears to contemplate any injustice towards Germany. It is being forgiven its debts, temporarily. No such pressure as it had intended to put upon the vanquished, had it emerged victor, is being put upon it.

So far as Poincare is an arch conspirator, it must
pertain to a conspiracy in promotion of peace.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION

Belief that prohibition can be enforced, together with a warm desire that it be enforced, is being encouraged in the minds of those who held it from the beginning. It is being created in the minds of others;
others who had been indifferent, or even had been in opposition. The continued spectacle of the open defiance of the constitution is not pleasing to Americans. Even the faction asserting that the law is bad, would be wise to accept the dictum of Grant that the best way to bring about repeal of a bad law is to enforce it rigidly.

The supposition that the crop of bootleggers is able to exercise a potency sufficient to overcome the sentiment of decent citizens, irritates deeply. Men who would be willing to buy liquor, law or no law, object
to the purveying of deadly poisons, bartered in the dark, bearing false labels.

At present the open struggle of the authorities is
with a class of miscreants who are willing to murder

for gain. The comparatively wholesome liquor once obtainable, is not obtainable now. The stuff that may be procured is likely to be fatal. When the bootlegger has been driven from the field, the problem remaining will be comparatively simple. To control the stock of whisky is within bounds of possibility. To control the spurious supply is the immediate duty, to be accomplished by utter suppression of the bootlegging brotherhood.

There is less talk about the loss of "personal liberty" than in the beginning. An untrammelled personal liberty that wins no prize save the chance of being killed by the vendor of poison, is nothing to be highly cherished.

The very fact that the business has passed into the hands of a criminal class, who lie and cheat and murder as incidents of their calling, should serve to crystallize public sentiment solidly against them;
which would mean their finish.

HAYS WILL HELP THE INDUSTRY

Critics are wont to say, apparently as a form of asperation, that the moving pictures do not represent an art, but an industry. Whichever classification may be correct, there is a general belief that the presence of Postmaster General Hays as executive head of the enterprise will be of great benefit. In every place to which he has been called Hays has made good. There was need of a clear head and a firm hand to control the movies. The institution as a whole had been drifting a little. It had lacked unity of purpose and method. There had been no definite center of authority.

To southern California the production of moving pictures is important in a commercial sense, as in a moral sense, it is important everywhere. This region is the best in the world for making pictures.
It affords the scenic environment that may be necessary in the creation of any film, whether to portray
the tropics or the Arctic, the plains, desert or ocean,
and its climate lends itself most kindly to the work.
Thus it happens that moving pictures have become a leading activity, that has resulted in the expenditure of vast sums here, and the permanent investment of millions. It affords a living to thousands of people directly, and the money they put into circulation has been a large factor in keeping this region the center of the financial white spot.

There have been good pictures, mediocre pictures,
and bad pictures. The last it would be impossible to eliminate too soon. A finer art may make the good ones better, and replace the mediocre by a more acceptable type.

To accomplish these reforms requires the censorship of commonsense, operating from within the producing mechanism, and not applied by busybodies or even honest reformers from without. Centralization of control thus becomes of value, and with Hays the big figure in such control, the public as well as the producers may feel confident concerning the future.

Two youths went hunting. One aimed a shotgun at the other and discharged both barrels, killing his comrade. His excuse is that he did not know the gun was loaded. Such an excuse is without merit.
Every gun is loaded in the estimation of the mentally sound.

CURIOUS WILLS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A London solicitor gives in the Daily Mail a list of curiosities in the way of wills.

All wills for which probate is granted in England
and Wales are filed in Somerset House.

Any one can inspect them by paying a small fee, but this rule
does not apply to the wills of the king and queen, which are sealed.

There are many strange and interesting documents.
Shakespeare's will, with its remarkable signature.

Nelson's will, written in an ordinary exercise book or copy
book, on the eve of Trafalgar.
Towards the conclusion are these words: "The enemy are now in sight."

A soldier's will, through
which a bullet has passed without making it illegible.
A portrait of a pretty girl, on which the testator had written: "I leave all I have to her." As it was properly signed by the legator, a soldier, and as there were supplied the necessary affidavits of identity, the will was probated.

One will is in shorthand. It is dated somewhere about 1700, and Pitman did not invent his system
for over a hundred years after that. The testator left a key, however, and the authorities were able to decipher it.

One will was salvaged from the bottom of the sea. It had been in the water a long time, but the only damage caused was shrinkage. It was written upon parchment, and was shrunken to a tenth of its original size. But it was so carefully written that it is still clear as print and can be read easily by the naked eye.

Another will, made by a victim of the plague,
when it was raging in London, was put in a bottle
of alcohol and corked, so that it would not be suspected of carrying fatal contagion, and so destroyed.

Still another record, and perhaps the most cumbersome, is the leg of a four-poster bed. The will of an earl had been concealed in it, and as there was some dispute over it, the leg with its huge
wooden castor had to be filed as evidence.

In one of H. Rider Haggard's stories he describes a will which a father had tattooed upon the skin of his daughter's back.

In no matter are the ways of the law more tricky
than in the matter of wills. Laws of inheritance
and rules governing the interpretation of wills vary
in different nations and in different states of the Union.

Even able lawyers have been known to make
wills that would not stand.

For this reason trust companies are coming
more and more in favor among testators who desire to make sure that their property will be disposed of according to their wishes.

A trust company, being "immortal," and being scrupulously guarded by the law, offers a better
security than even the most trustworthy individual.

While courts as a rule endeavor to ascertain and to carry out the real wish of the testator, the conflict of clashing interests, taking advantage of every legal technicality, often renders this extremely difficult.

THE LISTENING POST

A friend of the editor of the Listening Post
called the other day to ask how to write something.

Which was in the nature of a compliment, of course.

And was appreciated as such.

For the caller was a man of education and experience.

And it is in the nature of a compliment when
a man of education and experience thinks you know something.

And asks your advice.

And suggestion.

And you may not always give it, but you appreciate being asked for it.

A great many people give advice upon the slightest provocation.

And some give it before it is asked for at all.

Advice is something that you can get any time.
From nearly anybody.

Without cost.

It is a thing that everybody gives.

Hardly anybody takes.

And nobody relishes.

Unless it is the kind of advice you want to get.

Nobody likes advice that is unpalatable.

The older we get and the more thoughtful we become the less we are inclined to advise people.

Unless we happen to be lawyers and get paid
for it.

Or doctors who are called upon for medical advice as it is termed.

But advice is sometimes dangerous stuff.

The best kind of advice is that of a man's own conscience and spirit.

That seldom goes wrong.

If we listen.

But the glib advisers who suggest everything
from ocean voyages to suits for separate maintenance are dangerous persons.

And that was the only advice the editor of the Listening Post could give.

And the man went away declaring that he believed he could do the job he had to do well.

With the suggestion that he get full of his subject and then let his enthusiasm bubble forth in words.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Rover's Adieu—By Walter Scott (1771-1832)

"A weary lot is thine, fair maid,
A weary lot is thine!
To pull the thorn thy brow to braid,
And press the rue for wine.
A lightsome eye, a soldier's mien,
A feather in the blue,
A doublet of the Lincoln green—
No more of me ye knew,
My Love!
No more of me ye knew."

"This morn is merry June, I trow,
The rose is budding fair;
But she shall bloom in winter snow
Ere we two meet again."
—He turned his charger as he spake
Upon the river shore,
He gave the bridle-reins a shake,
Said "Adieu for evermore,
My Love!
And adieu for evermore."

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Possibly Mr. Hays will put a new direction to the move in the movies.

Chicago banishes the opera Salome. Murders in the city's Nineteenth ward, however, are not capable of producing a moral shock.

Ex-President Wilson is said still to be sore at defeat of the Versailles treaty. There are others.

In a recent suicide pact both parties failed. Not much brains in the combination. The pact was the first sign, and the failure the second.

A man arrested for forgery says he is nephew
of a United States senator. "Irrelevant, impertnent and immaterial."

Scientists in Russia are now permitted to have full rations. Have been made members of the bol-shevist diet, so to speak.

If anybody could have bought the French navy
and put it on wheels Henry Ford was the man.

One of the trustees in the Missouri pen sneaked
outside and got married. His fellow convicts wanted to lynch him, but their emotions probably were mild compared to those of the bride.

Many a speeder fails to realize in time that he is

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WHEN A MAN'S MONEY GOES

[Omaha Bee]

"A good sport, but an awful dumb-bell" certain
young women are quoted as saying of a certain young man who has fallen under suspicion of misappropri-
ating funds belonging to other persons.

Such frankness is customarily not heard until the subject has come to the end of his rope. Sometimes the man himself makes the confession of folly, but whether he does or not he is not allowed to miss realizing the mistake he made.

The habit of strutting is not peculiar to the males
in the poultry yard, for men also find joy in crowing
loud and swaggering about like the cock of the walk.

It is not always that the other sex is taken in
by these airs of wealth and postures of importance.
Sometimes they merely humor the delusion by accepting extravagant gifts or entertainment without question.

Not infrequently girls suppose to have been brought up with definite and strict standards of conduct allow and even encourage young men to spend more on them than they should. Thrift is made impossible and pleasure to consist only of extravagance.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Most of us are delightfully charitable in our judgments—of ourselves. Most of us are wonderfully kind—to ourselves. Most of us are charmingly indulgent—to ourselves. Charitable judgment, kindness, indulgence: all good traits. How we can excuse ourselves for the actions that seem blameworthy to the keen eyes of others! How we can deceive ourselves into thinking that we are just about ready to assume a halo and two perfectly good
wings and float about on a cloud, like the cherubs
of the old masters!

Didn't you ever wonder where those floating
cherubs had parted with the rest of their anatomy?
The trouble with us is that we can't solve the problem how to do likewise—and as long as we have cumbersome bodies we shall find it hard to float
on clouds. Our actions and our thoughts must perform, be on world levels. We can't leave all our fleshly weight behind or below—us. We have to carry it to the end.

That's what others have to do, also. Don't let's forget that. And they need charitable judgments and kindness and indulgence as much as we do. It may be that at times they need them more. But that need not matter to us. It's queer, yet it's an integral part of our human nature how much heavier the weight of their unkindnesses, their pecca-dillos rests on our shoulders than do those we are guilty of!

Sometimes, when we're tempted to be hasty and
severe, let's be so to ourselves, rather than to others.
It may be good, it may be bitter, medicine.

If in their pursuit of good times the young women
will not pause to consider whether they are doing
right to encourage the rapid spending of their com-
panion's funds, it might be well for the young men
themselves to raise the question in their own minds
as to whether the game is worth the candle.

One may be a dumb-bell without falling foul of the law and without spending any one's money but his own. And when his pockets are empty, then will he hear the verdict—"He was a good sport,
but—"

A SUGGESTION FROM THE SOUTH

It might be a good idea to pass the cost of the old
wars on to posterity so that posterity can't finance
any new wars.

OUT OF THE MELTING POT

[Capper's Weekly]

The new governor of North Dakota, E. A. Nestos, is a good example of the melting pot's work. Born in Norway in 1877, he came to this country in 1893
and began life as a farm laborer. This 16-year-old boy worked his way through the University of Wisconsin and the University of North Dakota, and now
succeeds Governor Frazier, nonpartisan, who was recalled.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The district attorney of Kings county, New York, has stated that he favors the branding of alien criminals.

Such a course would be repugnant to every humane instinct. It would condemn to a condition of habitual criminality every ignorant foreigner, who perhaps through this ignorant alone, had fallen into error.

It is the business of a district attorney to determine guilt and to punish the guilty. If in the trial the fact that the accused had been wrongfully charged should develop, the official ought to be glad of it. In other words, he has not the right to regard a prisoner guilty until the proof has been adduced. When guilt has been demonstrated, it is his duty to wreak vengeance, but to advocate a corrective penalty, at once protecting society and tending to reform the culprit.

A man branded as a criminal would by that emblem be made to continue a criminal. He would have no chance. He would be the victim of a cruel wrong inflicted by the state.

Criminals should be punished. Often they escape through the trickery of lawyers and the stupidity of jurors. It may be necessary for their punishment to be severe, but the method of its administration ought to be decent, and, of course, it must be within constitutional limits. It would be neither were it to include the proposed branding.

The retiring chief of police in Los Angeles made a few remarks concerning "meddlesome reformers."

A minister gives rather heated reply from the pulpit. Who told him that anybody had been talking about him? Maybe he is not that kind of reformer at all.

When dispute arose concerning the decree of the League of Nations in relation to Silesia, an active hope was aroused, on the part of foes of the league, of a new war of large proportions. They at once arranged for Germans to be fighting Poles over the new boundary. The bolsheviks were to send in an army to complicate matters.
French and English soldiers were to be on the spot shooting at every body in sight, and of course the whole pacific arrangement was to go to flinders.

It seems that the question is being amicably settled. Nobody is likely to get hurt. No racial hatreds are being engendered. Noting doing in the way of loud alarms.

Really, between the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, the opponents of peace are having a hard time.

There is said to be a large movement of industrial emigrants of Russian birth from the United States to Russia. These are made up of agriculturalists. There could be no objection to the movement.
The United States does not particularly need these people, and Russia does need them.

In the valley of the Volga is a vast farming area that drought, aided by the blight of bolshevism, has turned back to desert conditions. The population there is dying. Even when the rains fall again, and the fallow land becomes capable of producing, the survivors will be without tools or money or seed, save as these may be sent in from the outside.
An influx of Russians, trained in America, carrying with them
the fruits of their labor here, and undertaking the work of regeneration with spirit, might prove the salvation of stricken Russia.

As usual the residents of large cities are protesting against noise.
The one way to escape urban clamor is to move to the country.
There the noises will be found less violent. Few of them are soothing to the nervous soul, at that.

One of the rackets placed on the tentative taboo list at Philadelphia, is that made by church bells. There is not the slightest disrespect in saying that such bells are no longer essential. People have clocks at home, and are likely to carry watches wherever they are.
Those who desire to go to church are fully aware of the hour to present themselves at the door.

William Congreve, who did his writing in the seventeenth century, made one couplet that has been exceedingly convenient and popular. It is not infrequent for occasions to arise to which the lines seem peculiarly appropriate. These are the lines:

"Nor hell has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned."

Often the orator shortens this by saying, "hell has no fury like a woman scorned." In taking this course, he runs the risk of being told by some exact observer, that he has misquoted.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The other day I had a talk with a major who had been shell shocked. As a matter of fact, he had not received an actual injury through the explosion of a shell. But his nervous structure had caved in under the demands made upon it in France during the war.

"Now that I am all right again," he said, "I've made up my mind irrevocably to one thing. All the rest of my life I propose to go slow."

He said that the American general staff and all the minor staffs were geared to too high a pitch during the war. They had the American idea, he said, that flesh may be made steel and that nerves are something that silly people talk about.

"We did too much and at too high a speed," he said. "Men worked all day and half the night at tasks in which an error meant the sacrifice of life. We used to scorn the French because they took things easy. A French staff officer would work for a time and then he would go out for some relaxation. He might spend an hour in front of a cafe or call on friends or sit down to read a novel. No matter what form that rest might take, he always took it."

"You Americans do not gain anything by overdoing," an old French staff officer told me once. "You should double your staffs and halve your hours."

The American laughed at him then, he said. He was possessed of the idea that Americans might be driven at high speed without injuring the machine. Since then he has changed his mind. The men who were overdriven show the marks without an exception. Some of them have recovered and some of them never will and some of them are dead. He thinks that we ought to take warning in civil life by our experience in the field.

"We should play a little as the French do," he said, "or take the week-end off and drink tea each afternoon as the British do. We laughed and sneered at them then, but now I see that they were right."

He thinks there would be fewer divorce cases in this country if our men and women alike ran on low speed half the time. The men, he says, rattle their nerves to pieces at work and the women go to jingling
by overplay. He thinks there is a happy medium.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-killing properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Adv.

VIRGINIA FREEMAN

Mrs. Virginia Freeman, who came to Glendale from New York city about six months ago, will be a soloist at the concert which the madrigal club is giving Thursday evening in the auditorium of Glendale high. She is a dramatic soprano and will sing Herbert Spencer's "O Joyous Love," a waltz song.

Mrs. Freeman is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Gresham, at 422 East Colorado street, and is teaching in the California Academy of Music on North Brand boulevard.

She is very much in love with Glendale and hopes to persuade her husband to locate here when he joins her a few months later. He is a characteristic actor, taking middle-aged and elderly roles, has worked in pictures from almost the beginning of the industry. She has devoted most of her life to teaching, and specializes on that, rather than concert work. She thinks Glendale is a wonderful music colony and is most appreciative of the cordial welcome it has given her.

Following the installation the retiring noble grand, Mrs. Rosella Stothers, who is now the acting past grand, was presented by the lodge with a beautiful jewel engraved with the emblems of the order, the presentation speech being made by Mrs. Bettie Smith.

Members then retired to the banquet hall, where sandwiches and salad, cake and coffee were served.

The lodge is growing rapidly and is in a flourishing condition in all respects, as evidenced by the interest displayed at this installation.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia water—drunk with water, it has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water—drink with water, it has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

"Shakespeare Day" At Tuesday Afternoon Club

This week's meeting was Shakespeare day at the Tuesday Afternoon club and was of tremendous interest because the talented members of the Shakespeare section furnished the program.

Scenes from "Midsummer Night's Dream" were presented, under direction of Mrs. Henry W. Reiston, the role of Duke Theseus being assumed by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, curator of the section. A very handsome young man she made in royal robes, her black wig surmounted by a most becoming crown. Mrs. Chester Kilgus was beautiful as Hippolyta.

The second portion of the program covered Scene 1 from Act 1, and Act V. It climaxed in the festivities attendant upon the nuptials of the duke and his bride when workmen who had rehearsed a play picturing the woes of Pyramus and Thisbe were invited to produce it before the wedding party, and this scene as cleverly developed by these club women under Mrs. Reiston's tutelage, proved uproariously funny.

Mrs. Von Oven as "Prologue" was beyond praise. Mrs. Colin Cable outdid herself as "Wall." Mrs. Calvin Whiting was a most amusing swashbuckler as "Pyramus," and Mrs. B. O. Holbrook as "Thisbe" gave an entertaining exhibition of a man's impersonation of a maid. Mrs. William Hunter with her antique lantern as "Moonshine," and Mrs. Homer Lockwood as "Lion," were equally acceptable in the characters mentioned.

The thing could be said for Mrs. E. Hilsted in the character of "Egeus," Mrs. R. A. Puffer as "Demetrius," Mrs. Helen Mae Hoops as "Hermia," the charmer, Mrs. Eustace Young as the love languishing Helena, Mrs. Bert Ward as "Philostrophus" and Mrs. C. Ayars as a "Lady in Waiting."

Charming accessories to the scenes presented by club members were furnished in the first instance by the Shakespearean songs sung by a trio composed of Mrs. Cleo C. Stoler, Mrs. Edgar Lloyd Smith, and Mrs. Floyd Mercer, with Miss Litch at the piano. They filled the interval preceding Act V with "Ye Spotted Snakes" by Mozart, and "The Fairies" by Rossini. It was a delightful interlude as all the ladies have fine voices which blended as one.

Another beautiful feature was the fairy scene in which Glen Hitchcock in characteristic costume which suggested a cross between clown and imp, did a wonderful dance and heralded the approach of "Oberon," king of the fairies (Shirley Hitchcock), and "Titania," the fairy queen, a most beautiful one in the person of Cecilia May Fisher, and their court composed of little folks in the daintiest of garb, wearing wings, crowns of flowers and wreaths. It was a most beautiful ballet and Mrs. Keller, whose pupils these youthful artists are, is to be congratulated on their work.

The fairies were: Elizabeth Turner, Beatrice Turner, Nellie Aleshire, Dorothy Godfrey, Mary Alice Ross, Genevieve Marek, Eleanor Thompson, Mildred Thompson, Ann Elizabeth Wilkinson, Patricia Carline, Margaret Baruch, Katherine Sonntag and Blossom Moore.

The performance also was embellished by the piano accompaniments of Miss Litch.

While the audience waited for the curtain to raise on Act I, it was addressed by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, a past president of the club, who voiced her pride in the performance and development of the organization, always ready to support anything worthy for the advantage of the community. She appealed for its aid in the music memory contest to be put on by the Glendale Music club for the purpose of educating the public in a knowledge of the best in music.

She called attention to the list of compositions to be played at all possible places while the contest is on, to the money prizes which are being offered and described the grand finale concert in which distinguished musicians will give numbers from the list of forty contest compositions, the audience being given opportunity to name the compositions, and after the judges have reviewed the guesses, the prizes will be awarded. It should prove a rather exciting occasion and be of inestimable benefit to the community.

She announced a meeting tonight in the music room of the high school of representatives of all the clubs, societies, fraternal and other organizations in the city who have been invited to assist in the contest, and urged large representation from each one at that meeting where details will be discussed and committees appointed.

She also appealed for phonograph records of the selections named in the contest list published last week, that they may be loaned to schools and program chairmen for use during the contest, and at the end given to the county library to constitute a circulating library of fine music in the rural schools of the state.

PSENNER-DOLL CO. MOVES FEB. 15TH

Will Be in Larger Quarters by Middle of Next Month

The Psenner-Doll Auto Electric company, now located at 611 East Broadway, will move into its new location, now under construction at the corner of Brand boulevard and Chestnut street, about February 15. The present location of this firm has become too small to take care of the increasing business and to give them the service they are entitled to. The new building will have a large entrance on Brand boulevard and an exit on Chestnut street so that the customer can drive right through the building. The shop is to be placed at the rear of the building, where equipment is to be installed for the rapid handling of all electric business.

The addition of this equipment places this firm in a position to handle all branches of auto generator and starting troubles, including the rewinding, rebuilding and reconstruction of all makes of auto generators and starting motor armatures. Mr. Jackson, more commonly known as Jack, who, for the past two years, has been chief electrician with the Willard service station, will be at the head of the electric department. This department will be known as the Glendale Motor and Armature Shop. Mr. Jackson is

WALLY REID HAS A NEW WINNER

Wallace Reid's newest film attraction, "Rent Free," was presented at the T. D. & L. theater yesterday to crowded houses, and hundreds of satisfied patrons, whose enjoyment was thoroughly expressed by uproarious laughter, went home having witnessed a truly entertaining and pleasing picture. It is one of Reid's best and is filled with comedy situations that sparkle with the flash of cleft chin. One roars out in appreciation of the humorous vein continuously. Seeking a real, genuine "good show," one could do no better than to see "Rent Free." Those who did not see it yesterday can do so today and tomorrow, when it will be given its last presentations.

The comedy attraction, "Assorted Heroes," was also well received by the audience. It added much to the already enjoyable program, as did the personal views (Screen Snapshots) of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Constance and Norma Talmadge, Wallace Reid and other, that were also thrown on the T. D. & L. screen.

The popular musical numbers being rendered by George Olsen at the master organ continue to please, and are being received by appreciative patrons of the popular playhouse. The whole bill is a "winner."

CHATS WITH MARTHA ALICIA

"WHEN SHALL WE MEET AGAIN?" is the question asked so plainly and appealingly by Carl Penton's Orchestra throughout the novelty new waltz recorded for Brunswick by the same name! It is a most winsome melody—one that will strike instant warmth in the hearts of all music lovers! The reverse side is another heavenly waltz—"Song of Love"—and bids well to be every bit as popular as its coupling of Carl Penton's orchestra also plays it! But it is that wondrous Oriental fox-trot that has so swept the country like wildfire—"The Sheik of Araby"—that Rudy Wiedott and his Californians have selected as their offering to the February list of Brunswick records—and as its coupling they're playing "Broken Toy"—a sure winner! I know your weakness for Isham Jones' records, and so you'll be delighted with his own composition which he brings us this month—"What'll You Do?"—coupled with an entrancing fox-trot—"Stars!" To the alumnae of the University of Michigan and their friends the recordings of the University Male Quartet will be of great interest! Their "Yellow and Blue" combined with "College Days" as well as "When Night Falls, Dear," and "Ann Arbor Days"—are sure to awaken fond memories of these wonderful school days—while the Varsity March—known to all who had the Yellow and Blue is played by Walter B. Rogers and his band coupled with the Victor's March! Stop in at the BRUNSWICK SHOPPE, 126 South Brand Blvd., and ask to hear them—they are on sale Thursday, February 19!

Ammonia is the best cleaner for soiled irons. Saturate a soft cloth with this liquid and rub the surface. The iron while it is hot. Follow by waxing thoroughly and a gloss will be imparted that will make the work easier.

WHEN I'M SHOPPING I'm just in my element! I simply love to browse around through the shops in quest of pretty things for Milady's home—dainty adornments for her person and charming little pleasures to make life more worth while! These are the sort of things I'm selling you of today in this column—goods of genuine merit, bought by the Glendale merchants at prices that are right in order that you may have the advantage of the saving! Just follow me on my daily visits to the shops and you'll find all manner of things that cannot fail to be of infinite interest to all housewives and home-makers! My advice is—Adopt as your shopping slogan—Buy at Home—and you can't go wrong!

An old kitchen table turned upside down, with legs cut short and put on the other side, makes good sand box for baby.

HAVE YOU SEEN IT? The new model Universal Electric Iron, at the GLENDALE ELECTRIC CO. of 132 North Brand Blvd. It is truly a marvel! The design is perfect—a rounded heel and smooth pointed nose—and you may depend upon it always having a cool top and a hot base; and too, this iron heats very quickly and holds the heat longer than most others I've seen! Even on the cord is a convenient spring to take up extra length—just every convenience and asset conducive to efficiency! It is an iron that is perfect!

"THE GIRL OF TODAY—if she would be right up-to-the-minute in what she wears—must be a demure little maid with prettily waving hair combed back from her face!" Yes, but the Miss who's hair simply will not curl—or who hasn't enough to comb according to Dame Fashion's edict—what can she do? Here is an idea! Mrs. Billig of the BROADWAY BEAUTY PARLOR, 214 East Broadway, is selling most attractive side waves made of real hair—and naturally curly! They may be made to match the most unusual hair—and can be pinned on and combed into place in such a manner that the most fastidious couldn't detect them! Perhaps, your hair is thin just at the sides from rattling in then here is something that will give it an opportunity to grow out again! Stop in and ask Mrs. Billig to show them to you!

Velvet and serge slipon dresses for fall are made exactly like the linen slipon dresses that have been so popular this summer.

To keep the side of a cake moist after it has been cut, apply a damp pad of tissue paper over the sides.

YOU MAY ALWAYS DEPEND UPON FISHER'S VARIETY STORE, at 212 East Broadway—having the goods you want at prices you can easily afford to pay! Today I found a special on corsets—the well-known Pansy corset in all sizes at two prices—98c and $1.39. Then, too, they just the dandiest girdles for $1.49 and wonderful brassieres for only 59c. Stop in at Fisher's and ask to see this week's specials!

Delicate shades of colored linens can be kept from fading by using plenty of powdered borax in the water in which they are washed and rinsed.

WHEN QUALITY AND WORKMANSHIP vie with price for first honors in the selection of your new window shades—LEWIS C. DAVIS is the man to whom you'd best give your order! Mr. Davis is known for his good-looking shades—and reasonable prices! And you may have them made to measure at his factory and salesroom at 417 E. Broadway! Lino-lum, too, is a big feature of Mr. Davis' business—drop in there and look over his stock when you are ready to make your selection!

by Constance Draasch. Vocal duet, "Fly Away Birdling" (Franz Abt) by Freda and Irvin Potts with Veda Knapp at piano. A sylvan dance, "Valse Chopin" by Marcella Webb with Gertrude Champlain at piano.

Violin duets, "By the Brook" (Boisdeffre) and "Romance in A" (Lierance) by Julia Robinson and Gertrude Mulligan with Marjorie Yarik at piano.

Male vocal quartette, "Kentucky Babe" (Adam Giebel), sung by Edward Stockbridge (tenor), David Griffith (second tenor), Joe McKee (first bass), Harold Sprague (second bass).

Supt. Davis Visits First Methodist Church Here

W. L. Y. Davis, superintendent of the Pasadena district, was in Glendale Monday evening for the quarterly conference of the First Methodist church. There was a good attendance and the reports from the various departments showed great activity along all lines of church work and increased efficiency.

Membership figures were especially notable. The enrollment of the church in 1917 was 405. In 1921 it totaled 872, having more than doubled. At the present time it is 1062, showing that steady growth has been made. The average Sunday school attendance in 1917 was 242. It is now 600. The Epworth League has also made progress. Against a membership of 77 in 1917 it now has 190 enrolled.

Benevolences also prove growth, the sum given in 1917 amounting to $1018, whereas the past year it has given $5061. Besides these donations it has recently raised $22,000 to pay off all indebtedness on the church and parsonage, and to provide a fund for contemplated improvements such as the seating of the gallery and the completion of organ units.

Each report handed in inspired expressions of praise and surprise from Superintendent Davis who indicated that this church is now leading the district in those items of advance.

Carl C. Settle, director of religious education made a very illuminating report of the work being done under his supervision. It was quite an eye opener to many present in the audience who had not been conscious of what was being accomplished.

MISS COMPSON IN NEWEST PICTURE

Attractive Star in "For Those We Love" Makes Big Hit

The new Betty Compsion production, at the Glendale theatre today and Thursday, is a Goldwyn release, entitled "For Those We Love." The story, written by Forley Poore Sheehan, was directed by Arthur Rosson.

In this picture, Miss Compsion is seen as a simple country girl, too unsophisticated to know the dangers she runs in befriending one of the evil characters of the town. However, her unguarded faith is justified by the change that her friendship effects in his life. The unprincipled gambler realizes that everyone is not spurred by the same motives of gain that have led him and his companions on precarious ways.

Of course, he falls in love with the girl, who has never felt other than friendly toward him. With the realization that she is beyond him, the real test of his character is made. With Lon Chaney as the gambler and Betty Compsion as the girl in love with another, the story of "For Those We Love" develops through a stirring series of incidents to a logical conclusion.

WOMEN ON JURIES VIEWED BY ROPES

Chicago Criminal Lawyer Says They Are Not on to Ropes Yet

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Women fail to make good on criminal juries because they go outside of the records of the case too often. They are governed too much by their likes and dislikes rather than facts.

This is the opinion expressed today by James C. (Ropes) O'Brien, Chicago noted criminal lawyer, in discussing with the United Press disagreements in the juries with women members in the Burck and Arbuckle trials.

"Placing women on a jury in a criminal case is only an experiment," said O'Brien. "It will take generations probably before they become good jury members. While they have the natural intuition of what is right, nine times out of ten, it will require, some time to get them educated so that they will take into consideration the rules of evidence and follow the instructions of the court."

CHICAGO MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Detectives today are investigating the mysterious death of Adolph Kohn, Chicago, in a room of a Broadway hotel. Kohn came to New York frequently on business. He was well-known by employees of the hotel. Last night Kohn retired early, appearing in a cheerful frame of mind. At 10:30, the switchboard operator answered a call from Kohn's room. A man's voice said: "Send a doctor up to Mr. Kohn's room. He may need him."

House detectives went to the room. They found Kohn partly clothed lying dead on the floor beside the bed. There were no signs of violence or struggle.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE BEGINNING

You think it's over, don't you, Boy?
That life can hold no more of joy?
No chum or counselor or friend
Can tell you this is not the end.
It don't know what it's all about,
And I'm not trying to find out.
But that real life you think is done,
The chances are, has just begun.

You think you're finished, done and through.
No more to smile, I know you do.
You've run your race and you have lost
And now you count the bitter cost.
So have it out and shed your tears,
But know the alchemy of years
Makes gold of dross—you think you're done?
My Boy, you haven't yet begun.

You think you're down and want to quit,
No hope or promise, not a bit.
No chance at all for you to win,—
Say on—it's better out than in.
But let me tell you this, my lad,
You've every chance you ever had,
And if you are knocked flat today
You're down, but you don't have to stay.

Come on, sad youngster, take a brace.
Let's look the world square in the face.
You're never beaten, never through
As long as there's breath left in you.
That beating that you thought was rough,
Forget it now—it's ancient stuff.
The world's brim-full of good to get,
You haven't even started yet!

EDITORIALS By The People

Editor Glendale Press:—Glendale is a charming city and has an ordinance prohibiting the establishing of any more cemeteries within her limits.

The Oak Forest Land and Water company, a corporation, desires to make a cemetery out of Scholl Canyon, but cannot do so because of the ordinance against it. And the corporation has now filed an action in the superior court against the city of Glendale, to annul and cancel this ordinance prohibiting cemeteries which stands in their way.

Now the people of Glendale are on one side of this case, and on the other side is a foreign, Los Angeles corporation, acting for private financial gain only, and instituted for the express purpose of profiting by the city of Glendale, to annul and cancel this ordinance prohibiting cemeteries which stands in their way.

Cemeteries are necessary it is true. But another one is not necessary in Glendale. It has now two large ones. And it is not at all a necessity to have cemeteries within a municipality among residences. Most of the cities in Los Angeles county have no cemeteries at all within their limits.

But this Scholl Canyon project is not to be a cemetery for Glendale. Glendale is only being exploited. The cemetery is to be for the use of Los Angeles City and Pasadena, and will be owned and controlled by a Los Angeles city corporation for its own profit.

One of its projectors candidly admitted last summer that Glendale did not need it, but that they expected to get their patronage mostly from Pasadena and Los Angeles. He said that Highland Park, Garvanza, etc., and Pasadena would come on Colorado boulevard through Eagle Rock to Verdugo road and then up into the canyon. That is, East Los Angeles would come up San Fernando road to Verdugo road and then up into Scholl Canyon. That Eden district would cross Ivanhoe bridge and come up to Colorado boulevard, then over to Verdugo road, and then west Hollywood would cross the Los Feliz bridge and come up Central avenue to Colorado boulevard and all come over to Verdugo road and up into Scholl Canyon to this big cemetery for their burying ground.

That is a fine prospect is it not? All these processions would pass over fine high school grounds, and would proceed to destroy Scholl and Sycamore canyons and much adjoining parts as fine residence districts.

And why would this be? It is not necessary. Both Pasadena and Los Angeles have very large vacant districts near them for their own cemeteries. Pasadena has the whole San Gabriel valley, and Los Angeles has thousands of whole farms within her own limits besides the large tracts of vacant lands, south and southwest of her. So it is plain that the whole project is purely one of extra pecuniary profit to this corporation. This land is fine for residences and should be used for residential purposes.

STRONG REASONS AGAINST IT.
First: Great value of the water supply. Water is king in southern California, and especially in Glendale and vicinity. Time will greatly increase its value. There will always be plenty of dry places in which to bury the dead, but there will not be enough wet places from which to get pure water for the living. We must conserve all water. It will be needed some day. Pasadena, Eagle Rock and even Los Angeles herself are searching for additional water supplies. Surely no water supplies should be destroyed and rendered unfit for use in this dry country by locating a cemetery over it.

for use in this dry country by locating a cemetery over it.

Scholl and Sycamore canyons provide a large water shed. Much larger than most of you are aware. These canyons come together above the narrows between the Dodge and Carter ranches, and a little above the Sinclair pumping plant on Sycamore Canyon road. Through this narrow passage way there flows several hundred million gallons of purest mountain water, and it is less than one hundred feet below the surface of the ground, and the elevation is nearly seven hundred feet. By putting down a couple of wells and tunneling across this water could be intercepted, raised to the surface and put right into the city water mains where it would go by gravity to nearly every part of Glendale. This would not be expensive like going up into the canyons to develop the water, and it would be worth many hundreds of thousands of dollars to the city. Test wells and the extent of these canyons prove that the supply is very large, especially for eight months of the year.

Would it not be criminal in us who have the opportunity now to protect the purity of this water supply, not to do so, and in the future when it was so badly needed, there would be found close above it a large cemetery polluting the water?

The water being comparatively surface water, and the earth filled in from the hills, this water could not be used, taken up just below a sewer. As we do not have separate pipes for drinking and cooking purposes, all water used in a city must be pure. You cannot sewer cemeteries. These canyon valleys will furnish elegant residence places for a large number of people, but since there would be no stables or live stock, if a perfect sewer system were installed, as will be done, the sewage would be taken away through pipes without contamination of the water at all. There are now a number of domestic water wells in Scholl Canyon which must soon be closed up if a cemetery is installed just above them. It will be much easier for the city to keep the underground waters in these canyons pure, than will it be to keep so in Verdugo Canyon. This cemetery would despoil the water from both canyons, as the canyons mingle the waters a considerable distance above the narrow outlet where the water is easiest raised.

Second: This canyon district and the nearby property is among the very finest residence parts of Glendale, and by reason of the peculiar and unique location, this proposed cemetery at the head of the canyon would create a constant nuisance and be a damage to the whole section. The cemetery would be in a pocket reached only by one street which traverses the whole distance for a mile or more. This would be cemetery "row." With ten or a dozen funeral processions each way every day no one would buy property or build good homes on such a street to the great damage of this property. The nice residence sites all about on the foot of the hills would be ruined, for who would invest or build for a fine view only to look down on rows of funeral trains?

And this sort of travel would injure and mar the value and beauty of our fine high school sites as nearly all these funeral processions would pass it. This location for a cemetery is very different from one placed out in the open with streets leading to it from all directions. To Scholl Canyon there is but the one street leading to it, and there can be but one.

Third: The creating of an insti-

HELP THEMSELVES TO TREES BEFORE LAND IS SOLD

Property to Be Sold, But Owners Reserve Trees Shrubs, Etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Turck had a very unpleasant experience Tuesday afternoon when they discovered men with shovels and a truck digging up valuable trees and shrubs and lily bulbs, of which they had accumulated about a bushel when discovered. In answer to interrogations they lamely explained that they heard the place had been sold and that they could help themselves to anything growing there.

Mr. and Mrs. Turck have been living there continuously and were at home at the time; there seemed little excuse for such vandalism. "No trespass" notices are being posted on the property which is still in possession of Mr. and Mrs. Turck. The board of education has purchased it for an intermediate school, but no money has passed as yet. It was sold with the reservation on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Turck that shrubs and flowers which they have accumulated during many years of residence were to remain their property and be taken by them to a new home.

SHALL NOT MARRY SAYS FARWELL

Has Money Enough to Take Care of All His Children

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 18.—"Thou shalt not marry," was the commandment Hartwell Farwell dictated to his household, police said today.

Farwell forbade his sisters, sons and daughters to marry and handed down the duty of enforcing celibacy in the family to his bachelor son, James. The son confessed to the murder of Philip Houston when he was about to marry Farwell's sister, Alice. Another sister who married, was ostracized by the family.

The elder Farwell hated the institution of matrimony and declared it was only justified to escape from starvation.

"I've enough money to take care of my children, so they will not have to marry," he often declared.

tution in that proposed place which must need such a very extraordinary use of the street below, would be unfair to the property owners abutting the approaching street. For the cemetery property having no abutting street frontage would not need to pay anything for the upkeep of the streets or sidewalks, yet would use the street many times more than all of the property owners who must keep up the street for all the long approach.

Fourth: To prevent the location of this cemetery in the canyon would not in any sense be a confiscation of the property of the corporation. For the land is in an elegant location for a high class residence subdivision and for other purposes as well.

Fifth: In what single way would this third cemetery be of advantage to Glendale? In no way at all. Glendale does not need or want it. The project is not fostered by Glendale people, but by Los Angeles parties. Its stockholders and officers are Los Angeles people. Its home is in Los Angeles. The money received for lot sales goes to Los Angeles. The population of the cemetery will do no trading in Glendale, nor will they aid in assisting in any organization for civic improvement. Would it not be quite more valuable to Glendale to have this canyon valley, than will it be to have several thousand living people?

Sixth: Is it not preposterous and absurd for this private party grabbing corporation to attempt to force something on the city she does not need or want? In fact a thing she has enacted an ordinance against.

Will any court listen to such an attempt if all the facts are made known to it? Surely not. The city refuses to repeal this ordinance and when such a thing as a strong protest came from the people. Last year the large Sierra avenue district asked to be annexed to Glendale largely to get the protection of this ordinance against cemeteries. If this ordinance is repealed and the bars let down, the present cemeteries will be greatly enlarged, and no doubt there will be many new ones to get the increasing Los Angeles custom.

One of the projectors of the Scholl Canyon cemetery has announced on the side that this would be the big cemetery in the San Fernando valley. That it expected to take over the Grand View plant and become affiliated with the Forest Lawn so that the three could pool their interests and keep up to Los Angeles prices.

Now for action. This cemetery project can be defeated, and it must be done. Each citizen has an interest in the good of every part of the city. The exercise of this general interest is what makes a city worth living in. Will not the various improvement associations, the chamber of commerce, the city council, and civic organizations—all the people assist in providing assistance in securing counsel in court, and in getting out the facts?

P. T. MCNUTT.

It's nice not to be at home when some people call.

HERO SEA CAPTAIN, WIFE AND CHILDREN

When the United States liner Hudson reached New York waters with six men rescued from a sinking fishing smack off St. Pierre, N. F., aboard, most everybody concerned or interested accepted the news as a matter of course. But down at Whitestone, L. I., there's a pretty little woman who is firmly convinced that it was all due to a special and particularly merciful act of Providence. She is Mrs. A. B. Randall, wife of the captain of the Hudson. Captain Randall, it will be recalled, was confronted last October with charges that he had passed a party of fishermen adrift in an open dory without making any effort to pick them up. On these charges he was tried and acquitted, but only after he had been temporarily suspended. Now, on his first trip after being restored to his command, he has had the good luck to silence criticism of his conduct by heroically rescuing six men from the sinking smack and bringing them safely into port. And his faithful wife, for the life of her, can't see anything but the hand of Divine Providence in the matter. "God must have been watching out for him to give him this opportunity," she said in advancing her view. The rescue was effected January 1. A terrific gale was raging at the time. The captain of the smack had been swept overboard and the six survivors of the crew were expecting a watery grave any hour. The rescue was accomplished by a lifeboat sent out and under great danger and difficulties. It was directed by Captain Randall in person. The photograph shows Captain Randall, with his wife and three children (from left to right)—Dorothy, Sylvia and Albert, Jr.

ANNEXATION GETS FEW MORE KNOCKS FROM PEOPLE

City Treasurer Gives Logical Argument Against Plan

Anti-annexationists are still giving reasons why Glendale should not consider the proposition of merging with Los Angeles. One of the latest reasons was given today by prominent "anti" who cited Culver City as an example of a city that annexed to Los Angeles and in return was given one policeman. In citing the Culver City instance, the anti-annexationist said that when the question of annexation came up in Culver City the people were divided and the only solution of the proposition was for the half that favored the merger to annex and the other half to remain independent.

Los Angeles, according to this student of annexation problems, promised Culver City a more adequate police force, better fire protection, better car service, lower taxes and more adequate water service. After annexation of the half of the city that favored it, the service was not improved. The independent section of Culver City continued and is still supplying the annexed portion with water and the only police or fire protection was the occasional visit of a policeman from another section. This policeman had the distinction of being the most expensive police officer in the United States. The tax payers of the annexed portion of Culver City paid Los Angeles $22,000 annually and in return were given one policeman. He was a nice chap, perhaps. The taxes were increased in some cases, it is alleged, by more than 600 per cent, and all that was given in return was the one policeman aforesaid, and a lot of promises.

City Treasurer J. C. Scherer said the thought of annexing to Los Angeles is foolish. Glendale has nothing to gain by such action and has everything to lose, he declared. This city has home rule and any taxpayer with a grievance can visit the city hall with some assurance of having his grievance heeded and if possible get relief.

"For a long time the promise of sewers was held out to Glendale in the event of annexation," said Scherer. "This promise has been refuted by Los Angeles through the statement of the committee appointed to investigate the capacity and condition of the Los Angeles sewer system, and it reported that the sewer system is now inadequate to care for the sewage of Los Angeles."

"Several years ago the promise of a larger water system was held out as a bait to Glendale. A committee was appointed and it investigated the possibilities of this promise thoroughly. After making a report of their findings, the committee recommended that the people do nothing."

CHINA'S OPEN DOOR IS PROCLAIMED AT SESSION

Minor Question to Be Settled Before Announcement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The powers in the Washington conference today had pledged themselves to the open door in China. It was learned by the United Press today that the delegates of the nine powers in the secret session of the Far Eastern committee last night approved a resolution or declaration of the American government solemnly reaffirming the "open door" policy in China.

This declaration is understood to be the most sweeping and definite promise ever given by the nations of the world to observe the policy of the open door. Definite announcement, that the resolution is broader than the Hay open door declaration, that it is intended to abolish "spheres of influence" in China, and that it broadens and defines the Root declarations already made, come from a Chinese delegate. At the same time, he and an American delegate announced that Japan's 21 demands will be considered by the conference.

While the powers in the Far Eastern committee are said to have given their assent to the American resolution or declaration, neither this nor the fact that the definite open door formula has been proposed to the committee by Secretary of State Hughes, was made public.

It was explained that there were some minor questions in connection with the resolution that had to be settled when the time came for adjournment. The committee will finally adopt the resolution at its meeting late today, it is believed, and the declaration will then be made public.

In presenting the American open door formula to the committee, Secretary Hughes outlined the stand of the United States. Arthur Balfour, head of the British delegation, is understood to have declared that Great Britain "seeks no special rights in China."
